in connection with an election. This bill, if passed, would insure publicity in regard to election expenditures, and this would be a step in the direction of checking the excessive use of money in elections—an evil which every one admits and almost every one deplores.

Mr. Sanger thinks of adding to his labors upon these measures another task of large proportions, namely, that of initiating a movement for an improvement of the methods of doing business in the Legislature. At present the desks of the members of the Assembly are heaped high with the bills which have been introduced. Over 2,500 bills have been introduced and printed in the Assembly, and 1,500 measures in the Senate. When these measures come up on the order of third reading it is impossible to turn over the files of bills fast enough to keep track of them. As a consequence the Senate and Assembly are acting upon most measures before them without any knowledge of their character. Mr. Sanger is drawing up a bill for the establishment of a non-paid commission, to determine if the methods of legislation cannot be improved and made more intelligible. He says that the commission certainly would recommend that the daily calendar of bills upon the order of third reading be edited so as to give a summary of every bill to be acted upon that day. If this were done Senators and Assemblymen could at least understand the nature of the bills upon which they are called upon to act. Mr. Sanger also would have a legislative actionicy appointed to draw up bills in proper legal form for members, and thus save much time for committees. Legislature. Washington.

Sir: We, the members of the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange, have noticed with profound regret the recent newspaper agitation about the increasing cost of live stock, and the unwarranted and untrue statements made. Alleged conversations with you about a proposed investigation have been the basis for a series of newspaper articles, which have had the effect of causing the market for live stock to be unwarrantably actinated. We can only attribute this and its consequent serious loss as the direct result of the reports alleged to have originated from your department concerning investigations you propose to make. Prices of live stock have decreased correspondingly with the consumption of beef, and we therefore respectfully protest against the widespread agitation for which your department has been responsible, and respectfully suggest that investigation be made quickly and without further harmful agitation. We court a full and thorough investigation of all interests connected with the live stock market. Respectfully yours.

R. P. WOODBURY,
Secretary.

COLOMBIAN REBELS UNSUBDUED. PRECAUTIONS TAKEN BY THE GOVERNMENT TO CONCEAL ITS REVERSES.

Port Limon, Costa Rica, March 28.-Owing to the strict censorship exercised by Colombia, little news is received here regarding the revolution in the neighboring republic. Any news unfavorable to the Caro, or Government, party is suppressed, while all cable and telegraph lines are under constant Government control, and all messages are vised by Government officials. The whole Colom-bian press is silent on the subject of the Government's reverses, but the same press publisher columns of matter on the Government's successes The Government's approuncements simply verify all reports as to the magnitude of the Liberal uprising. The political upheaval has been disastrous to the commerce of Colombia, all business being at a complete standstill.

On March 26 a band of about thirty-five revolutionists made a descent from the hills on Puerto Colombia, the Atlantic cortal to an important diatrict of the republic. The revolutionists captured the Resguardia, or quarters of the Captain of the Port, seizing a large quantity of arms and ammu-nition stored there, and making prisoners of a nition stored there, and making prisoners of a number of officials and employes on the wharf. They finally retreated to the billis, General Rodriguez, of the Colombian Army, with 250 men, gave chase and overtook the rebels at a small town eighteen miles from Puerto Colombia. After a fight in approved guerilla fashion, lasting eight days, General Rodriguez and his men claimed the victory, but at a net cost of 100 men killed and wounded. The rebel losses were slight.

The rebels hold much important vantage ground between the Government troops and the Atlantic seaboard. Despite assertions to the contrary, they are making headway and doing gallant fighting. Porced marches and bad supplies have greatly impaired the efficiency of the Government troops, it is reported that two steamers on the Magdalena, plying between Honda and Calamar have been provided to the contract to

Of all the queer gifts received by Prince Bismarck on his eightleth birthday the oldest was certainly a fine funeral wreath, contributed by an old lady who had intended it for her own grave, but who was impelled by a spirit of self-sacrifice and of admiration for the Iron Chancellor to address It to him as a birthday present. It figured rather locon gruously among the thousands of cigars, the oldess of every material and quality, the hogsheads of wine, heer and cognac, the Dopound cheeses, the wenty-three-yard-long sacrange, the hundredwelmit of pute de fole gras and the tanks containing living carp and salmon, which reached Freidrichsrub from every part of Germany on the anniversary of Prince Bismarck's birth. "The you mean by that that they could not resist Frederick Eaker's alleged importunities?" asked the reporter.

To which question Mr. Bennett would not reply. It is believed by many that Aymar began a system of bookkeeping in which Baker shared the benefit in the same manner that he did in Seely's case, and that Aymar can tell the whole story if he cares to. When Samuel C. Seely was seen in the Kings County Pentlentiary yesterdam he did not seem surprised at his brother-in-laws arrest. "I'm awful sorry for him," said he. What I decide is that the Massine burial service prescribed by our Grand Lodge is by its express words to be used only at the grave of a deceased brother, and that a furnace is not a grave within its meaning. We deposit mortiary tributes on the coffin of a brother when we use our service at his grave, but we have not provided a substitute to be used at a furnace. We do not prohibit the brethren from attending a cremation as a lodge; we merely hold that the ritual at present in force is not to be used except at a grave.

RADCLIFF DE LA MATER.

Sir: Radcliff De La Mater, who died at Stone Ridge, Ulster County, N. Y., on April 2, 1895, was a member of one of the oldest and most highly re-spected families in that section. He lived to the ripe age of eighty years, with faculties unimpaired to the last. Descended from a sturdy, God-fearing, liberty-loving ancestry, Radeliff De La Mater preserved many of the original family traits and characteristics. He was a man of strict integrity, pure morals and exemplary habits. Generous to a fault, he was as unfailing as he was unostentatious in the relief of the many appeals made to him by those in want. His reliable qualities commended him to his fellow-citizens. For forty-three successive years, with but two exceptions—in 1884 and 1865—he was elected Town Clerk of the town of Marbietown. On different occasions attempts were made to put him in higher places in the gift of the people, and nominations were offered him by his party, which he respectfully but firmly declined. Mr. De La Mater was a stanch Republican. During the Civil War he was a warm friend of the Union. Two sons saw service in the ganks of the Nation's defenders, one of them losing his life in his country's defence. Mr. De La Mater was born in Kingston, but from the time he was six years of age to the close of his life he lived at Stone Ridge, N. Y., where he followed the occupation of harness making and repairing for more than half a century. His wife and six children survive him. Twelve of his grandchildren and three great-grandchildren are now living.
